Children of the world, especially in Africa, are crying for education. They cry for protection against violence, diseases, malnutrition.

Women are in need of education and good health.

They need the help of the church.

The United Methodist Church is committed to doing good to all people, in all places, through providing scholarships; preparing strong and committed leaders; doing evangelism; supporting pensions for retired pastors in Africa and other places; upgrading its higher-education institutions; advocating for women's and children's rights; promoting social justice; and making disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world.

The church has always been there in helping to meet some of these conditions, but the church must continue to:

- Make disciples of Jesus Christ for the transformation of the world.
- Pray against division, racism, injustice, poverty, ignorance, diseases such as HIV/AIDS, bad governance, bad stewardship and wars.

God, in Jesus Christ, wants God's people to look up to God to live.

When people know God, serve God, do the will of God and are obedient to God, this is successful ministry.
